NO HOPE FOR DOLLAR WHEAT

GOLD TAKEN FROM SEA WATER

Hon. J.H. Thomas, secretary for the Dominions in the British government, in the course of an address at a luncheon held at London, England, said: "Dollar wheat? Everybody with practical knowledge knows that it will never happen again. Nobody knows better than Sir William Clark (ex-Canadian High Commissioner) and myself what a false thing it was to encourage this talk of dollar wheat. The sooner we face the fact the better."

New York—Recovery of the first actual gold and silver ever taken from seawater, tapping the storehouse of metal everywhere dissolved in ocean water, was announced recently by Dr. Willard H. Dow, of the Ethyl-Dow Chemical Company.

The first precious seawater metal is a tiny nugget, .010 of a milligram, no bigger than the head of a pin. It is half gold and half silver.

It came from the Atlantic Ocean at Wilmington, N.C. It is part of the gold and silver in 12 tons of seawater which was running through the seawater bromine plant near Wilmington of the Ethyl-Dow Company.

The 12 tons of water yielded up part of its gold and silver by treatment with colloidal sulphur. This sulphur was practically liquid. It dissolved in the water and when it settled down like a sediment, it carried the long sought precious metals.

The silver is present in larger quantities than gold. If the spectroscopy is right, there is enough gold in sea water to pave the United States and enough silver to roof the world.

Dr. Dow said this sulphur treatment is not the start of a commercial gold recovery program, but a purely scientific experiment to explore possibilities.

CLAIM COMMERCE TREATY BETWEEN JAPAN, GERMANY

London—A secret commercial treaty was concluded six weeks ago between Germany and Japan, according to the Taiti Herald.

Japanese soy beans are to be exchanged for German chemicals. It was stated. Germany would export 1,000,000 tons of this animal food yearly.

Claim that arrangements had been made for 500 German engineers and visitors to stay in Japan next year was also advanced.

DOUGHBOYS TO SET ENTIRE SASKATCHEWAN HOLDINGS

WINNIPEG—Peter Verigin, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, Limited, announced last week that the entire holdings of the corporation in Saskatchewan were up for sale.

Speaking through an interpreter, Mr. Verigin declared he could not at present disclose future plans for the sect in Saskatchewan.

First announcement of the sale came from John McDougall, an advisor to the Doughboy chief. Bids by tenders were being called for on the properties, he said.

The Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood owns $6,000 acre of land in Saskatchewan and has a membership between 6,000 and 8,000 persons. It was believed many would remain on the land in Saskatchewan while others might move to British Columbia where the brotherhood owns 46,000 acres which is not all being cultivated.

THE PEACE RIVER COUNTRY IS LARGE TERRITORY

The Peace River country, the last great agricultural frontier of the Western Canadian plains, exceeds the combined areas of Scotland, Ireland and England; it is over six times the size of Belgium, five times that of Denmark, one-third the extent of France, and slightly larger than the republic of Uruguay. Alberta News Bulletin

Revision of 1933 Wheat Figures
The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has issued a revision of its estimate of the Alberta wheat crop for 1933, following the close of the marketing season ending July 31 last. The first estimate was placed at 34,500,000 bushels, but the new revision based on marketing totals is placed at 101,000,000 bushels.

Cattle to Old Land
Alberta has shipped to date some 9,000 head of finished cattle to the Old Country markets, which is a slight increase over the figure for 1933 at the same date.

Graveling Contracts
Some 17 of the 28 gravel surface contracts awarded by the Public Works Department on the main highways systems of the province this summer have been completed. Others are rapidly nearing completion, according to the most recent compilation issued by the department. These contracts cover portions of main highways in many parts of the province, and in addition to providing for first course graveling on five sections, also provide for second course graveling on 17 sections and replacement on six sections. Some 140 miles is added to the gravelled system of the province by the first course contracts.

To Distribute Trees Again
More than 100,000 white spruce trees, and some 4,000 green ash will be available for distribution next spring from the provincial nurseries at Oliver. It is announced from the forestry branch of the Department of Lands and Mines. These trees will be distributed on the usual plan adopted two years ago, to farmers who have wood lots, or to schools, community centres, etc. Last year some 34,000 trees of various kinds were distributed from the nurseries to 238 different sources, which included 153 farmers, 18 schools, 12 institutions, and 14 municipalities for community purposes.

Substantial Increase in Tourist Traffic
Alberta enjoyed a substantial increase in tourist traffic during the past season, to judge by the volume of traffic handled through the ports of entry and in the various national parks in the province. Total figures would indicate the number of visitors to the national parks as being over 250,000, including provincial as well as outside travellers, as compared with a figure of 115,000 last year. Most of these came by auto. From two ports of entry at Carway and Coats on the international border, considerable increase was shown in the number of cars passing through. At Coats for the five months from April to August, 29,482 persons were handled, compared with 27,587 in 1933 and at Carway, south of Portland, 8,839 cars were handled with 30,236 persons in the same months compared with 6,255 cars and 22,347 persons in 1933. At Banff Park, nearly 100,000 persons in cars passed through the east gate this season, which was an increase over last year. Waterton Park, in Southern Alberta had a total of over 26,000 visitors, while Jasper Park west of Edmonton had nearly 10,000 visitors.

WHAT MAKES A MAN POPULAR OR UNPOPULAR WITH OTHERS?

All of us know that there are certain people we avoid, and some whom we have a definite reason for our dislike, and for others—well, we know we just don't like them and let it go at that. We just happened to run across an old copy of the American Magazine in which A. M. Ravage gives ten mighty good reasons to follow if you really want to be popular to leave you alone. Here they are, but our advice is, don't follow them if you want to be happy.

1. "I don't agree with you at all." Insist upon starting a discussion when the other fellow was only saying some thing to make conversation.
2. "I don't like your friend." Offer unsolicited and critical comment about a man's friend, or some member of his family. His wife or child will do it for him.
3. "Anybody could do that." Minimize other people's accomplishments, especially those they are proud of.
4. I know better. Offer authoritative information on every topic that comes up.

5. The nearer right you are, the surer you are to be disliked.
6. "I'll tell you exactly where you failed." Analyze your friend's mistakes when he is trying to forget them.
7. "As I was saying." Insist on dragging in your favorite topic among people interested in something else.
8. If you can give it an air of being a subject that the group are too stupid to know, or to follow, so much the better.

9. "I thought you were going to do what you said." Remind people of promises they made impulsively or out of good fellowship, but which you know they cannot keep.
10. "Let me show you how." Insist on holding the centre of the stage.
11. "I used to think the same way a while back." Throw a wet blanket on other people's enthusiasm. If you can make it appear that their taste is antiquated they will appreciate it all the more.

12. "That is nothing but prejudice." The surest way to succeed with this line is to pick on people's religious or patriotic sentiments.

There are many other ways to make

LONDON—The London Mail says Howard Carter, co-discoverer with the late Lord Carnarvon of Tutankhamen's tomb, will leave London for Egypt October 25 in an attempt to find the tomb of Tutankhamen's wife, Queen Ank-En-Amen. The queen's burial palace is believed to be near her husband's.

"GOVERNMENT HAS NOT ONE SAFE STATE" SAYS HOWSON

"From a complete review of the political situation throughout the whole province I would say that the federal government has not one safe seat. It will be as completely defeated at the next general election as were the governments of British Columbia and Ontario, and Saskatchewan." It was said Sunday by W.R. Howson, M.L.A., leader of the Liberal forces in the provincial legislature. In all parts of the province, he said, the people had made up their minds that it was time for a change. They were convinced he said, that the present government had completely failed them.

"There is an insistent demand for an early election," continued Mr. Howson, "but quite apparently the government is afraid to trust the people who elected it. The same people who elected the government in 1930 will at the next general election vote against it."

8. VISION IN SHOOTING

HERE is some valuable advice from shotgun experts, which will be welcomed both by novice and veteran shooters who are anxious to improve their marksmanship. Russell W. Elliott, Manager of Elliott's Sporting Goods at Kansas City, Missouri, writes: "There is probably no phase of clay target shooting in which the shooter receives so much misinformation as that pertaining to the use of both eyes. The well-meaning expert who shoots with both eyes open without knowing how or why will invariably tell the beginner in the game that he should also do so, without first inquiring about the relative strength of the shooter's eyes."

"The theory of shooting with both eyes open is that it permits quicker vision of the target when it comes into view, but contrary to general belief, the right eye does not act in the actual pointing of the shotgun after the target is seen. With a right-handed shooter, the right eye directs the gun, and it must be as strong or stronger than the left eye to prevent closing the left eye when shooting with both eyes open. A man whose left eye is the stronger should shoot from the left shoulder if he expects to make consistent good scores when shooting with both eyes open."

"To find out which eye is the stronger," he writes, "take a finger ring and hold it at arm length, look through it with both eyes open at some object twenty feet away. Then close the left eye. If the right eye still sees the object through the ring, which has not been moved the right eye is the stronger and may be trusted to align the gun and the shooter can keep both eyes open."

This is No. 8 of a series of 12 articles on Skeet Shooting. Cut it out. When all have been clipped, you will have a complete write-up of this sportsman's sport which is rapidly becoming the vogue across Canada.

Lessons Of The Depression

Perhaps the wish is father to the thought but it is quite evident that, in steadily increasing degree, people are expressing the view that the depression which has hung over the world like a fog for the past five years is lifting, slowly perhaps but nevertheless sure, and that glooms of misanthropy are receding through for the encouragement of mankind and the restoration of confidence.

In support of this view statistics are quoted of increased business, rising prices, more employment, increased revenues for the railways, rising national revenues. Betterments of this kind are noted, not in one but in many countries, and from many quarters come reports that there is a growing tendency on the part of people with money to invest to again proceed to do so.

Whether this more optimistic viewpoint is justified we are not in a position to say, and it is just possible that the statistical betterment noted is the result of the injection of artificial stimulus into the arteries of business by governmental bodies, rather than the outcome of a natural and more substantial improvement in conditions. Whatever may be the underlying cause of this slowly returning confidence, it is undeniable that it exists, and people believe that the tide waters which have been running so strongly in an adverse direction for so long have passed the peak and are now beginning to flow in an opposite and more favorable direction.

Coupled with this is a recognition in Western Canada that, while such betterments may be seen in other parts of the country and the world, there can be no marked improvement throughout this section of the Dominion until it is blessed with more favorable and normal climatic conditions, resulting in some profitable return to our agricultural population for the continuous labor they have expended. Unemployment has not been the cause of the vast majority of Western people. They have worked long and arduous hours, but in the end have been left in an unkind mood for some years past had denied to our working farmers any profitable return from their labor; in fact, in thousands of cases no return at all. Loss has been added to loss, and the cumulative effect has been to throw tens of thousands of other people out of employment because there was no work to be had. Such climatic conditions will not permanently continue.

Possibly one of the best indications that the depression is passing is that people are beginning to take note of the losses which they have suffered. Some of these are of a purely material and practical kind. For instance, and despite a certain school of thought which urges that man should plan his activities from year to year, and, as nearly as possible, balance production with consumption, there is a growing recognition of the wisdom displayed in Egypt in the days of the Pharaohs when under the guidance of Joseph they laid by and accumulated reserves in the years of plenty to carry them through the lean years. It is more and more coming to be accepted as a truism that in Western Canada we must do likewise.

But above and beyond the material lessons taught by the depression—lessons, it is to be hoped, that have been well learned by many—there are moral, ethical, spiritual lessons, the importance and significance of which will, it is also to be hoped, leave a lasting impression.

Hitchie, the famous prize-fighter, is reported to have once said that he never knew how good he was until his first licking. Many of us have taken a pretty severe licking in different ways during the past five years. It sometimes does a man good to be thoroughly floored. It may call up reserves of energy that he never realized were there. And this seems to be, ought to be, to the credit side of the depression. Adversity brings out the strength of character of men and women, or the lack of it. Seemingly strong men have gone down and gone under; others have displayed an initiative and developed a sense of character and strength which even they did not know they possessed.

Assuming that the fog of the depression is lifting, and that we are again slowly emerging into the sunlight of more prosperous times, now is a good time to take stock of what the depression has actually done to us and taught us as individuals and as a nation. If we correctly size ourselves up as individuals, and profit by our inventory of ourselves, the nation will be better, stronger, more confident. This, then, is a time for a realistic balance sheet of character, of habits, of motives, as well as, and even more important in the final analysis than balance sheets of money, stocks, bonds and chattels.

"I have just taken a real inventory," said a man who has had his full share of bad business breaks. "I've thrown out a lot of stuff I used to carry as assets. For instance, I carried on my payroll a lot of useless luxuries that were called 'friends.' When I couldn't manage the upkeep any longer, I let them go. Then I found out that they had been standing in front of people that really were friends. I've been spending time and money on people that didn't mean a thing to me, and neglecting those who did. Now I see a few such people often, and have a better time with them. I think, on the whole, I've come through the depression pretty well. The cash value of my assets has shrunk considerably, but that's balanced by a big increase in what can't be measured by any yardstick of dollars and cents. The result is my net worth is better. There's a good side to going broke."

How many people have been wasting time, money and energy upon things that really do not count, those that are worthless and that make life what it ought to be and was intended by an all-wise Creator to be.

Has the depression taught you who reads this any lessons? Are you a better man or woman because of the depression, or have you revealed weakness of character and spirit? Are you now showing deterioration to profit by the lessons learned. If so, with all its worries and difficulties and even sufferings, the depression may be turned to good account. It's up to you.

Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic Cramps and Stomach Pains

Prompt treatment with Dr. Foster's Extract of Wild Strawberry will soothe the stomach and relieve the pains (cramps) of the bowels, and thus does away with the sufferer's distress and relieves the collapse associated with attacks of this kind.

It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating action of the stomach, and bracing up the weakened system, thus making it a remedy for the treatment of both young and old.

Walked Seven Hundred Miles

Indian From North Accompanied By Wife And Two Children

Governor Ashley Cooper of the Hudson's Bay Company in his visit to Winnipeg from the north said: "One of the most interesting figures on board our ship was an Indian interpreter from the post at Fort MacKenzie, Labrador. In the early part of the year he had walked from there seven islands on the St. Lawrence river, 700 miles by the route he took, to accompany me on my tour to the north. He was accompanied by his wife and two small children. It was a very remarkable journey, though he seemed to regard it as of no account."

Glaciers Move Backwards

Unusual Happening In Switzerland Explained By Scientists

No fewer than 51 of 100 glaciers in Switzerland which have been under observation by the Society of Natural Sciences are reported to be moving backwards. Of the remainder 15 are moving forward and four are standing still. The scientists say that the 51 glaciers are moving backwards because they are melting more quickly at their "ends" than they are being pushed forward.

Siren Warns About Tides

Quicksands in France Traps Foot of Quarry

Mont Saint-Michel, most photographed French landmark, is to be provided with sirens against the peril of the sea.

Debate on the advisability of protecting strollers along the quicksands, incidentally, has led to the discovery that there is no sand, as being swallowed up by these oceanic holes.

Many an ancient Breton mariner, it was revealed, has been caught in quicksands and survived. The question is one of time. Rarely is a man sucked down to above the waistline, but many have been caught at a time when the tide was coming in and drowned.

The danger is that of drowning when the tide comes up from seemingly nowhere filling the vast reaches of sand with furious torrents and treacherous eddies.

Victims more often than not are visitors who start out for the historic island of Tombelaine, and felled by their calculations of distance and time into being trapped by the tide.

Some, of course, are caught in quicksands and are unable to free themselves before the tide rises to their chests. Seized with panic even if caught only up to their knees, they are victims of the quicksands. It is not true that they sink into the sand, it is true that their methodical struggles prevent them from getting free.

A siren on the hill, it is argued, would warn these travellers to turn back in time. It also is proposed to erect concrete "islands" at various points for the protection of promenade walkers by the tide.

Old Ship Scuttled

Otago Was Once Commanded By

Sixty-three years ago a small sailing ship of 248 tons, the Otago, left Liverpool for Port Chalmers, New Zealand. She did the voyage in the shortest time of 50 days, and many were the yarns told of her, both in the town and at her destination.

Now she has been taken out to sea for the last time and scuttled. She will not pay to be raised. But her past was a tale of romance. She was once the command of Joseph Conrad, novelist, and later he made references to her in his books—"The Mirror of the Sea," "Palk," and "The Shadow Line."

Built in 1869, she put up some fine performances. Once she sailed 306 miles in 24 hours. Her last days were spent as a coal hulk in Hobart, Tasmania, a battered but proud vessel.

World Peace

League Of Nations Society In Canada Organizing Mass Meeting

Canadians are vitally interested in world peace. Primarily this is true because of the humanitarian outlook of our people and because of the stress was rightly placed upon law and order in all realms, not excluding that of international affairs. This general outlook is strengthened for us by two special considerations. Firstly, our position as a member of the British Commonwealth would make it exceedingly difficult for us to avoid becoming involved in any large-scale conflict. Secondly, our trade position as a great exporting country makes it exceedingly important for us that confidence, peace and financial stability be restored throughout the world.

The League of Nations Society in Canada is organizing a series of mass meetings throughout Canada late in October, 1934, with a view to bringing these and other important considerations before our people and developing a sound public opinion in support of the maintenance of peace. The three signatories hereto, being the Saskatchewan members of the National Council of the Society, urge all communities in Saskatchewan to join with the rest of Canada in this demonstration by organizing local meetings and addresses at that time.

Programs and necessary information and assistance can be obtained from the Society's office, 124 Wellington street, Ottawa, on request.

Canada is not a militaristic nation, but the best safeguard against its becoming so and the best assurance of our influence remaining a steady one at Geneva and elsewhere abroad is the development of a strong public opinion within our own country. We therefore confidently and earnestly commit this program to our fellow citizens of Saskatchewan: J. M. Brouillette, Regina; Andrew S. Sibbald, Saskatoon; (Mrs.) Violet McNaughton, Saskatoon.

Butter, cheese, bran and pollard, oilmeal and oilcake, oats, wheat and rye flour, lard, bacon and ham, salted beef and pork, condensed milk, refined sugar, unmanufactured, unsteamed leaf tobacco, potatoes, onions and lubricating oil are some of the agricultural products supplied by Canada to Barbados, the most easterly island of the British West Indies.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen prey to a half-sister in plenty of trouble," the lawyer said Gerard Keene. "The Broken Spur has been automatically looking the ranch and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go on what was happening for himself—not as Gerard Keene, but as the lawyer Dustin and Spikes Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, had grubbed him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur men rustling flour-glaze cake and proceeds against it.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER III.—Continued

This time Spikes scoffed openly. It was no secret on any ranch in Seco Valley that Edith Carr had re-born-ed, fiery-tempered daughter of the old owner of the Hour-glass, did exactly as she chose. So did her father. In most things for she dominated even the dour old man whom most men feared. Edith was red-rehanded for nothing and she had discovered it once to his sorrow. When he and Spike had first thought up the loose scrip that gave them title to the Broken Spur, he had vaguely noted the red-headed unformed schoolgirl who occasionally went to the infrequent Valley dances.

Then five years passed; she became the rage and he was suddenly aware that the unforged girl had developed almost overnight into the perfectly formed woman whom men openly coveted.

It was a full two years since Dustin saw her when his eyes were opened. She was coming out of the office in Seco and he, about to enter, stood as though paralyzed at sight of her. Her gray eyes stared at him unseeing and her bright head was upturned as she passed and a couple of "dry farmers" giggled.
Dustin flushed. He did not know nor would he have cared had he known that for that morning old Joe Carr had commented on his known conduct at a Mexican dance and on a hourhold that he maintained in Sepulveda. Dustin raised his hand to step up to her.

"Aren't you going to say 'Good morning'?" he asked quietly.

"To you? Why?" Edith stopped and looked at him as one might look at a man who had looked burned even Sam Dustin.
"I'd like to walk up the street with you."

The loaders at the office-door did not hear his words but they saw him drop into step with her and they muttered each other. Then he saw her stop and draw herself up. There was no mistaking her words. They were with the whir and snap of a whiplash.

"The street is open to the public,
I believe," she said. "When I walk with any one it will not be with a squire man."

That was all. Dustin, the big man of the Broken Spur, dropped back.

His face was white with wrath and his lips were set. The men who saw it all never said a word about it till they got safely home but after that, word spread. They watched him munch his horse from the tie-rack and they preserved the silence of the damned till his horse was swelled up in a dust-wealth. Then:
"She sure set fire to his shirt-tail," quoth old Styler. The others giggled uncomfortably. They knew Dustin fairly well.

Sam Dustin neither forgave nor forgot that incident and more than once he had planned revenge but no opportunity came his way. That one hot encounter marked Edith Carr as the one he had planned revenge but no opportunity came his way. That one hot encounter marked Edith Carr as
the one he had planned revenge but no opportunity came his way.

He had sense enough not to try to force his attentions on her. He knew old Joe Carr was to wait for the time the old man was one of the old breed that held their women-folk sacred.
The man must be better than only to get his legs under old Joe Carr's table where the pretty Edith held away. That was also the cause of trouble for the Hourglass ranch.

It was a big ranch. For miles it went flung up into the hills and it had broad ranges pastured man cattle.
But hard luck dogged old Joe Carr's starred eyes. First beef dropped to nine dollars. Then the market was down. Then a bucking pony slammed him against a lugging-post in the corral and broke his leg in two places.

The break healed imperfectly. It had to be broken twice and the pain and the irritation over being a cripple when every one was so good and ed, awoke the old fever that had never really subsided since Edith's mother was laid away in the little burying-ground under the great alamos. "I cotton-would."

From day to day Edith tried gallantly to stop that solitary drinking. She saw her father go into his office after supper; she saw the door close and she knew only too well what was taking place behind that closed door.
Twice she tried to force an entry but each time she was repelled and the door was locked. Sick at heart, for he knew what the trouble was, she went to old Frank Crevie, the former owner of the Broken Spur.

"Is there no way to make him stop?" she sobbed. "Oh, Frank!
You know what it means! He's torn my life to pieces!"

Crevie nodded. "He's got a good man to run off the straight at a time."
The back-crook looks like a bankrupt glass foundry. Miss Edith, but I'll be damned if I can make him see sense.

The size of the matter is that he's just plumb worryin' himself into his bed and he's drinkin' to keep out of it. Darn him! He ought to know that with times like these are those two men Dustin and Goddard over at the Broken Spur are just about as at night waitin' for a chance at him.
If he ain't darned careful they'll git it too."

They did get their change and they knew well how to take advantage when it came their way. They both knew what was taking place at the Hour-glass. A drinking bout and a careless bunk-house and any ranchman knows what that means. It spells disaster.

The result was not quick-moving.
It came with the slow growth of an avalanche. That moves very slowly at first till sheer weight overcomes inertia. Then it becomes suddenly dangerous. That first slow danger showed first in a slight lessening of the number of calves brought down.
Then a long line of fence broke down and no one discovered it till too late.

Cattle strayed off the home ranges and if they calved at all, brought forth their young in hidden places where no one discovered them until late. Then a few calves with stilted tongues. That told its own story to range-herds. "Calves whose tongues were stilt to keep them from suckling their own dams."

Then followed a gradual drop in the price of the stock. Any one could see it! And finally the open legal row over Soda Springs.

High Heaven alone knew why those people were called Soda Springs.
There were three of them; great jets of clear cold water that sprang from the well of the upper valley. They formed a deep pool at the end of the great gulches. Soda Springs was a constant and never failing source of water supply even in the long dry seasons when no rains fell. To the sick and injured Joe Carr the name came like a thunderclap that Dustin and Goddard had brought suit over the water of his own claim to the ownership of those springs. No one had ever thought to question his ownership be-

St. Paul's Cathedral

Saving Edifice From Encroachments Of Modern Commercialism

Considerable progress has been made during recent weeks with a scheme for surrounding St. Paul's Cathedral with a "sacred area" within in which no deep excavations would be allowed which might endanger the shallow foundations of the building.

Such a scheme was first proposed in 1912, but nothing more came of on behalf of the Cathedral authorities on behalf of the architectural authority, sent a letter to the Lord Mayor inviting the corporation to help in protecting the cathedral.

The matter was referred to a special committee of the corporation, and they have been helped by a report on the subsoil and foundations of the cathedral, drawn up after over two years' investigation, by Sir Alexander Gibb and Mr. Ralph Freeman.
The report was accompanied by a model showing the underground condition of the city from Boulevard Street (turning off Fleet Street) to the Bank of England.

The special committee have recently been drafting a bill in which it is hoped parliament will establish the controlled area. Though the details of the bill are not yet available, but because it marks the establishment of the principle that a great work should be protected, if necessary by Act of Parliament, from the encroachment of modern commercialism."

Let Us Do Your Printing?

All business houses need more or less printed matter, all of which is within the possibilities of the local printer. Yet how prone many are to pass up the home printer and let the orders go to city offices which have no interest whatever in rural communities except to get printing orders and the cash to pay for them. Business men, remember that the home paper is constantly promoting the interests of the home community and you owe it to yourself and your local paper to back up these efforts by at least having your printed matter done locally.
